SPEED OF CARS ON CURVES. TRACTION COMPANY'S TWO SUG.

GESTIONS TO THE ALDERMEN. Mr. Vreeland Says They Might Put in . r, Vrecinid may alloy sight Put in a Slow Cable and Belay All Traffie, or Might Tunnel Under Union Square-Compressed Air Motors May Solve It.

President H. H. Vreeland of the Metropolitan Traction Company appeared before the Railroad Committee of the Board of Aider men resterday afternoon in response to an invitation to present to the committee the company's position in the matter of reducing the speed of the Broadway cars around the Fourteenth and Fifty third street curves.

Vrecland said that the question was one of operation, not mechanics. He presented two propositions, the first that the company put in a slow cable at Fourteenth street, and the second that the cars be run through a tunnel constructed under Union Square Park on a straight line from Fourteenth street to Seventeenth street. The former procedure would cost the company abou, $150,000; the latter, $250,000, if the necessary permission from the Park Department can be secured.

We stand ready," he said, "to spend all the money necessary to meet any proposition that the authorities of this city impose upon us. I will go further, and say that we have willingly spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on improving our system, and at our · own suggestion, too, We have used all the safeguards that human ingenuity could devise under existing conditions, but we stand ready to go further."

When the cable was started, in 1893, he said, there were put in operation 125 cars. The result was that the cable was as slack as a manila rope and the Fourteenth street curve could be rounded at any rate of speed the gripman saw fit. With the opening of the Columbusavenue line the tension on the cable bebus avenue line the tension on the cable became greater because of the added number of cars. To add to the strain on the cable down town the opening of the Lexington avenue line has done a great deal more, until now 365 cars are run. The first let up on the down-town cable is at Twenty-third street, where the Lexington avenue cars swing off, and again north of Thirty-sixth street, where the up-town cable is taken. The maximum speed of the cable is but seven miles an hour south of Thirty-sixth street.

but seven miles an hour south of Thirty-sixth street.

"I am ready to put in a slow cable at Fourteenth street to morrow, but I want your committee to assume or share the responsibility for the bue and cry that will be raised as a consequence. If the slow cable is put in it means a slower transit all over the road, for with three cars a minute arriving at Fourteenth street over the fast cable you can see how they would arrive faster than they could be disposed of. Consequently it would mean that I would have to take off at least 25 per cent, of the present number of cars in operation. In this day when so much is said about rapid transit I confess that it is temerity to propose such a thing. I have had frequent consultations with Mayor Strong on this subject, and I told him as I tell you that the question is not one of mechanics, but of operation. We can reduce the speed at Fourteenth street, but at the expense of accommodation of the general public."

but at the expense of accommodation of the general public."
"What did the Mayor say about it?" queried Alderman Parker.
"He replied," answered Mr. Vreeland, "'It would never do, boys, to propose that."
"This talk about our inability to stop cars on curves," said Mr. Vreeland, "is absurd. We can stop our cars on any part of the curve, but we cannot resume the cable—that's the trouble—because of the great tension on the cable due to the heavy traffic and the great number of cars operated.
"The seventeen miles of cable roads that we operate in this city carry daily 625,000 people, of whom 125,000 are transferred from connecting lines; if ore than three times the number carried by sail the railroads in Bufface, with its 125 miles, or twice as much almost as the entire system of trollies, and there are 250 miles of them, operated by the Consoligated Traction Company in New Jersey, and twice as many as the 200 or more miles of roads in Brooklyn carry."

As to the difficulty in rounding curves. Mr.

dated Traction Company in New Jersey, and twice as many as the 200 or more miles of roads in Breoklyn carry."

As to the difficulty in rounding curves, Mr. Vreeland explained that if a car released the grip on a curve the cable running through it would saw off the laws of the grip in less than a minute and render the car useless.

The proposition to straight in the road from Fourteenth to Seventeenth street, and run it under Union Square Park, Mr. Vreeland thought would raise a bowl of indignation against the company, so he would not discuss it at length, nerely saying that he had such a plan at his office, and that it would in no way disturb the present ascect of the park.

Mr. Vreeland, in conclusion, added that the company has several atternative propositions under consideration. One is a change of motive power on the Broadway line from cable to compressed air; the use of compressed air on the Madison avenue line, and the diversion of a great deal of the Broadway line thereby to that line. The compressed air motors are now nearing completion, and within a few weeks several of them will be in operation.

The hearing closed with the understanding that Mr. Vreeland would submit a brief to the committee.

FELL SO FEET AND STILL LIVES.

MOUNT VERNON, July 16 .- About 11 o'clock this morning William Hocking fell from the top of the new water tower, over on the Pipe Line road in Yonkers, a distance of eighty feet, and the is alive and conscious. He broke through three sections of scaffolding during his fail, and these boards may have saved his life. His com-panions hurried down the shaft expecting to find him dead and mangled, but he was yet con-scious. eclous.

ONE BARTENDER, TWO TRIALS. Excise Reformers and Goff Give Carland

a Buny Week of It. John Garland, a bartender in Finnegan's saloon, at 102d street and Amsterdam avenue, was put on trial before Recorder Goff in the General Sessions yesterday for the second time this week for violating the Excise law on election day last by selling liquor within 200 feet of a polling booth. He was tried on Monday, and the jury disagreed, standing 9 to 3 for acquittal. The Excise Reform Association, through its representative, William E. Fulton, who was foreman of the jury which convicted Walter L. S. Langerman of criminally assault ing Barbara Aub, is complainant against Gar-for trial again so soon. He criticised the action of the Assistant District Attorney in persisting in the trial of the case when there were hundreds of prisoners in the Tombs awaiting trial, while Garland's case was a simple misdemeanor, the trial of which was likely to take up nearly two days. Recorder Goff declined to postpone the case, and said if Assistant District Attorney Lewis moved the trial it would have to go on. Mr. Lewis began to explain that, individually, he was rejuctant to try the case again, but the Recorder cut him off and said he would have to speak officially. Then Mr. Lewis moved the case for trial.

After a long delay in getting a jury, Mr. Fuiton took the stand and swore that he bought a glass of whiskey from Garland at 3:20 o'clock P. M. on election day. The saloon was darkeied, but he identified the defendant as the man who sold him the whiskey. He admitted under cross-examination that on the trial of Henry Kloppenberg, a bartender at Nineteth street and Amsterdam avenue, he had stated that he bought a drink from the latter at 102d street and Amsterdam avenue. This was a mistake. William Kiernon testified that he accompanied Mr. Fulton and got a glass of whiskey from Garland, too. There was some variation in the time mentioned by the two witnesses. The defence introduced testimony tending to show that Garland was at the polling place in 104th street, near Amsterdam avenue, at the time Fulton says he bought the whiskey. The show that Garland was at the poining place in 104th street, near Amsterdam avenue, at the time Fulton says he bought the whisker. The trial will be continued to-day. It is understood that Recorder Goff after the first trial of the case ordered that it be retried immediately.

Expressman Herdman Is Not Afraid of the Trolley Cars.

The driver of one of Luddick's Newark and New York express wagons stopped in York street, Jersey City, yesterday, to adjust the load, which was slipping. William Herdman of 19 Arlington avenue, Newark, the driver of another express wagon, stopped to give him a lift. Herdman was pulling on a rope, when it broke, Herdman was pulling on a rope, when it broke, and he fell directly in front of a troiley car. The spectators thought that he would be killed, but the car fender pushed him along for several feet, turning him over two or three times. He was severely bruised and scratched and hiclothes were torn. It was suggested that he taken to the City Hospital, but he refused to go. "I'm going home." he said. "These damned troiley cars can't kill me." After getting some stimulants and having his wounds dressed, he climbed up on his wagon and started for Newark.

POLICE BROKE UP THE "DUEL,"

Italians Try to Settle a Fend with Clubs, Stilettes, and Revolvers, A little boy ran into the Bedford avenue police station, Williamsburgh, on Wednesday night and told the desk Sergeant that a dozen Italians were going to fight a "duel" in a saloon in Havemeyer street, near North Sixth. The policemen hurried to the place and were told that the programme had been changed. The parties had agreed to meet in a square at the junction of North Second and North Fifth streets. The "duel" was arranged by an Italian named Spandano, and the participants were to be Giovanni Rabbine, Ganziano Maritiano, Giuseppe Famanda, Cartano Mosato, and seven other Italians. The feud had lasted four years, and was caused by a quarrel at an Italian celebra-

On Wednesday afternoon the Italians met at 227 North Second street and renewed the feud. Famanda proposed a fight. The others were willing, and it was suggested that clubs be used first, stilettos, next, and then revolvers. Mari-tiano, Famanda, and Mosato selected Vincenzo first, stilettos, next, and then revolvers. Maritiano, Famanda, and Mosato selected Vincenzo Danzaro as their second, and Rabbine and his crowd selected Gaitano Sporato. It was originally agreed that the affray should take piace in the rear of the saloon at 9 octock on Wednesday night. Tens minutes before that time the police received the tim. When they got into the yard back of the saloon that place was deserted. They were on the point of leaving when they heard a pistol shot, and ran into the street. The Italians were on the square armed with clubs, stilettos, and revolvers, and attacked the police on their arrival. Famanda, who had slashed Rabbine with a stiletto, tried to shoot Detective Campbell. The latter fired a shot over the Italian's lead and Famanda surrendered. Meanwhile Policeman Montgomery was having a rough-land-tumble fight with Mosato. Mosato had a 44-calibre revolver, which Montgomery knocked out of his hand. Policeman Melaughlin arrested Maritiano and another policeman captured Danzaro. The others escaped. Rabbine, Maritaino, Famanda, Mosato and Danzaro were taken to the station house. Rabbine had his head bandased by an ambulance surgeon. Lie charged Famanda with a sault in the second degree. Rabbine and Maritiano were accused of fighting, and Mosato of carrying a revolver without a permit. Danzaro was held on a charge of vagrancy. When the prisoners were arranged in the Lee Avenue Police Court yesterday they refused to tell who their companious were, Justice Schnitzspan remanded them for a hearing.

SISTERS AT LAW TOGETHER. One Was Playing for Fun, the Other Made

It a Game for Leeps. Fannie S. Robinson moved yesterday in the Supreme Court for the appointment of a receiver of her half interest in the houses 363-367 Greenwich street and 18114 Franklin street, which her sister, Agnes M. Schmitt, of San Francisco was recently directed by a judgment of the Court to reconvey to her. The half interest is valued at $60,000. Mrs. Robinson, who eet is valued at $60,000. Mrs. Robinson, who had been sued for $10,000 for stander, transferred the property, as well as $5,000 in securities, to her sister in 1896 for $1 to defeat recovery in the stander suit. The understanding was that the property should be reconveyed. A verdict of but six cents damages was rendered against Mrs. Robinson in the suit, and thereupon she demanded the property back from her sister. Mrs. Schmitt set up a counter claim for $50,000 for taxes, repairs, and the services of her husband, Mr. Schmitt, in collecting rents and looking after the $55,000 property for two years. The independ of order the reconveyance of the property and allowed Mrs. Schmitt $5,000 for her services.
